

THE MUSEUM CIRCLE
INVITES YOU TO A PREVIEW SCREENING OF

HOTSPOTS

DISAPPEARING SPECIES

LOSS OF HABITAT

IS THIS THE END OF THE WORLD?

A documentary film by writer / director Dr Michael Tobias, on the war to save thousands of species and the most biologically valuable places on the planet.

“Hotspots” refer to those areas which are populated by the largest number of unique plant, animal and insect species at risk of going extinct and what it takes - in the trenches- to negotiate a sustainable future for life on Earth.

Shot in multiple locations throughout New Zealand and United States, Peru, Brazil, Madagascar and Chile’s Easter Island, this epic reminds the viewer of the precious array of life, the very creation that is at stake in this generation.

The filming of “Hotspots” encompasses many locations throughout New Zealand.
